Description:

Exceptional old color example of Schenk's rare view of Acapulco from Schenk's Hectomopolis, one the the great late 17th Century birds eye view books and the first to provide a comprehensive treatment of important cities in the New World.

By 1700, Acapulco was a significant Spanish port in the Manilla trade and the base of many important merchant operations. The view illustrates Spanish and local inhabitants in the foreground, overlooking fortifications on a hill perched above the bay and the city and harbor spreading out on either side, with ships at anchor and on the horizon.

One of the most decorative of all 17th Century views of Acapulco.

Schenk's views rarely appear on the market. This is the second example we have seen in 20 years and the first in such fine old color.
