Description:

Large detailed map of the Southeastern United States, from Virginia and the Chesapeake to Northern Florida and the Panhandle, West Florida, Georgia, Louisiana and the Mississippi, extending north to the Missouri River and Western Territory.

The map was issued during the fascinating decade after 1800, prior to the formation of many of the early territories after the original 13 colonies. The map pre-dates the appearance of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan in the Northwest, showing only Western Territory. The Illinois and Wabash Company lands are shown. The region west of the Mississippi is called Low Swamp Land. The map predates Mississippi and Alabama Territories, noting mostly the lands of the Creek, Seminoles, Chactaw, Chickasaw and Cherokees in a massive Georgia, with many early annotations. East and West Florida also appear in large format, noting many Indian Tribes, Villages and other details. Western Georgia includes notes on Indian Hunting Grounds and a number of forts which were destroyed along the Yasoo River in the early 1700s and forts on the Mississippi and other rivers.

Pinkerton's maps are scarce on the market.
