Description:

Nice example of Matthaeus Seutter's decorative and highly detailed plan of Brussels, with a striking view of the city below.

The map orients the southeastern part of the old city at the top of the plan, resulting in a pleasingly sub-symmetrical image. Detail is extensive, with the major arteries of the city all depicted and numerous buildings of importance depicted. In the bottom left is a key for thirteen such places.

The undoubtedly morbid view at the bottom of the map has a gallows view front and center, before giving way to a slightly more detailed view of the city. Eleven places of interest are noted throughout this view.

Detailed Condition:

Original hand-color. Minor foxing in lower left.
