Description:

William Henry Jackson Panoramic View

"Presented by the Denver Chamber of Commerce"

An impressive and detailed panoramic view of Denver, looking to the west, from the vantage point of the Central Presbyterian Church tower at 17th and Sherman, after photographs by renowned western photographer William Henry Jackson.

The State Capital Building is on the far left, with the area near the Brown Palace Hotel in the foreground at the far right. In the distance, the snow capped mountains extend from Mount Hahn to Pike's Peak and Devil's Head.

Other buildings and locations noted in the captions: Sherman Avenue, County Court House, Kittredge Building, Exchange Building, Equitable Building, Boston Building, E. & C. Building, Metropole Hotel, Cooper Building, Club Building, Windsor Hotel, Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, Unity Church, East Denver High School, Sisters of Loretto College, Mt. Evans, Torrey's Peak, Grey's Peak, Arapahoe Peak, Mt. Audubon, Front Range, Long's Peak, Medicine Bow Range.

The view was created from four separate photos by Jackson, which have been joined in the printing process.

Jackson was one of the foremost photographers of the American West.

W. H. Jackson's name appears in the copyright notice within the image: "Copyright 1894, W. H. Jackson."
