maps of the Hawaiian Islands being among her most famous works. However, this map, which was produced for the Big Island USO Club, is virtually unrecorded.

The primary revision is in the title of the map, which notes that "the Territory of Hawaii. . . became . . . part of the United States of America voluntarily and not by conquest of purchase," is a marvelous bit of persuasion, clearly reflective of its intended audience and the primary mission of defending the the US against Naval threats in the Pacific.

The map on the verso is an excellent early map of Hilo, which was originally prepared for the Works Progress Administration.
