Description:

The Most Iconic Image of an Apollo Astronaut

The "Visor Shot" of Buzz Aldrin on the Lunar Surface

This emblematic photograph from the Apollo program captures Buzz Aldrin standing on the lunar surface, moments after he became the second human to set foot on the moon during the historic Apollo 11 mission. Taken by Neil Armstrong, the first man to step on the moon, the image features a unique perspective as Armstrong is reflected in the visor of Aldrin's spacesuit. The photograph serves as a powerful symbol of human achievement and the spirit of exploration, representing the pinnacle of the Apollo program and humanity's first steps on a celestial body beyond Earth.

Rarity

Heritage sold an 8x10-inch red letter version of the photograph for $125,000 in
