Description:

An excessively rare, separately published wall map of the Americas with an unrecorded view of New York and 3 other views. Only two other recorded examples, one at Colonial Williamsburg and one in a private European Collection. Based primarily on the Mathisz map of 1655 which in turn followed Joan Blaeu's World map of 1648. The cartouches and embellishments differ from the Mathisz. Open Great Lakes. California as an Island. The large polar inset is derivative of the Blaeu, although the shape of the the Northern part of California is based on Hondius' map of North America. Rare wall map, the first to appear on the market since the 1950s. Goregously hung in a plexiglass shadow box. For a full condition report, please e-mail a request.
