Description:

Extremely rare map of America first issued by Jan Jansson in 1623. The first edition of the map was issued separately and is known in only 1 example (Library of Congress). This is the rare 2nd state of the map, which retains the set of 6 views at the bottom of the map. While at first blush the map appears similar to Blaeu's America, there are a number of differences. Jansson's map includes views of North America, including the Poeiock Village in North Carolina & views of Carolina and St. Augustine. The penninsular California is retained, with the extended Northwest Coast including definitive place names north of 40 degrees. The East Coast of North America is rich with Indian names. The polar region inset is derived from Blaeu's wall map of 1608, as are the towns illustrated along the top. The second state is identical to the first, but for the chip in the upper right corner. Burden noted that only there are only 4 known examples of Jansson's 1630 Atlas Appendix which include this map and 1 known example in the 1631 Atlas Appendix. Burden 207. A gorgeous example, with a rich dark impression. The only uncolored example of the map have which has appeared on the market in the past 10 years of which we are aware. Old tape residue in the margins and a faint waterstain on the left edge.
