Description:

Gorgeous map of Lithuania, with parts of Poland, Prussia, Ukraine and Belorus, from an early edition of the Mercator-Hondius. This is one of the maps which includes Gerhard Marcator's name as the map maker. Extends from the Baltic, including part of Prussia, to the Carpathian mountains at the headwaters of the Vistula in the southwest, confluence of the Bug and Dniepr Rivers in the Southeast and the headwaters of the Volga in Belorus. The map is centered on Lithuania and shows many cities, towns, rivers, mountains, forests, lakes, etc. From the 1607 Latin edition of the atlas. A rich full color example and a crisp dark engraving on nice thick paper with wide clean margins. A particularly nice example.
