Description:

Interesting unit history map, tracing the significant advances of the 9th Corps under Major General Raymond S. McLain through Germany in the spring of 1945.

The map details the Corps' trajectory as it breached the formidable Siegfried Line and progressed toward ultimate victory, punctuated by notations of intense skirmishes, critical battles, the liberation of concentration camps, culminating in the poignant meeting with the Red Army at Wittenburg.

The strategic movements are underscored by illustrated vignettes, providing a visual narrative of the Corps' march across the war-torn landscapes of Europe.
