Description:

Fascinating engraved map of the Nile north from Aswan, with extensive labeling of the sites along the river.

Expeditions further down the Nile did not proceed successfully until the 19th century; Abu Simbel, for instance, was not discovered until the second decade of the 19th century, and the source of the Nile was not definitively discovered until Speke arrived there in 1858. Thus, this map represents to a large extent the authoritative knowledge of the Nile River.
