Description:

Visualizing Vice and Race in 19th-Century San Francisco -- "A Standing Menace To The Health of [San Francisco]"

Fascinating thematic map, issued in 1885, covering San Francisco's Chinatown and showing occupancy, prostitution, gambling, Chinese temples, etc.

This example of the map is bound into San Francisco Municipal Reports For The Fiscal Year 1884-85 . . ., illustrating a 53 page section entitled Condition of the Chinese Quarter . . ., which comprises Report of A Special Committee organized to investigate and report upon Chinatown, written by W.B. Farwell and John E. Kunkler.

The map was issued at the height of anti-Chinese hysteria in the United States, which was particularly rampant in California, and no doubt further fueled such negative sentiments as a piece of fear-mongering issued under the guise of visual information.

The map covers the area between California and Broadway and Kearney and Stockton, showing the footprints of hundreds of buildings individually and coloring them by the following characteristics:

- General Chinese Occupancy
- Chinese Gambling Houses
- Chinese Prostitution
- Chinese Opium Resorts

- Chinese Joss Houses [Temples]
- White Prostitution

The map is reminiscent of Charles Booth's mapping of London, particularly in its attempt to map urban social conditions, and actually predated Booth's Life and Labour of the People of London by several years.

The PJ Mode Collection (1093) quotes from Shah Nayan's Contagious Divides, and we reproduce that commentary here:

"This map reflects the pervasive bias against the Chinese in California and in turn further fostered the hysteria. It was published as part of an official report of a Special Committee established by the San Francisco Board of Supervisors "on the Condition of the Chinese Quarter." The Report resulted from a dramatic increase in hostility to the Chinese, particularly because many Chinese laborers had been driven out of other Western states by vigilantes and sought safety in San Francisco ([Nayan] Shah[, Contagious Divides: Epidemics and Race in San Francisco's Chinatown,] 2001, 37).

"The substance and tone of the Report is best illustrated by a few excerpts: "The general aspect of the streets and habitations was filthy in the extreme, . . . a slumbering pest, likely at any time to generate and spread disease, . . . a constant source of danger . . . , the filthiest spot inhabited by men, women and children on the American continent." (Report 4-5). "The Chinese brought here with them and have successfully maintained and perpetuated the grossest habits of bestiality practiced by the human race." (Ibid. 38).

"The map highlights the Committee's points, particularly the pervasiveness of gambling, prostitution and opium use. It shows the occupancy of the street floor of every building in Chinatown, color coded to show: General Chinese Occupancy|Chinese Gambling Houses|Chinese Prostitution|Chinese Opium Resorts|Chinese Joss Houses|and White Prostitution.

"The Report concludes with a recommendation that the Chinese be driven out of the City by stern enforcement of the law: "compulsory obedience to our laws [is] necessarily obnoxious and revolting to the Chinese and the more rigidly this enforcement is insisted upon and carried out the less endurable will existence be to them here, the less attractive will life be to them in California. Fewer will come and fewer will remain. . . . Scatter them by such a policy as this to other States . . . ."' (Ibid. 67-68).
