Description:

Fine example of Antonio García Cubas's map of the state of Tlaxcala, published by Cadena y Ca and lithographed by Montauriol Sucesores.

The map was issued as part of the Atlas Geografico de los Estados Unidos Mexicanos, a comprehensive atlas comprising 30 maps detailing Mexican states, the Federal District, and territories including the Yucatan peninsula. This particular edition is noted for its new silver border, adding to its aesthetic quality.

Antonio García Cubas, the renowned 19th-century Mexican cartographer, played a significant role in depicting Mexico's geographical and cultural dimensions during a pivotal era of national development and identity establishment.

The map showcases various types of settlements such as state capitals, head towns of districts, villages, and municipalities, along with haciendas, ranchos, and areas noted for their mineral wealth, represented through a detailed legend of symbols. It provides exhaustive details of the topographical features, road networks, and rail connections, existing and under construction.
