Description:

Detailed 18th-century engraved map of the American Southeast, published by Richard Phillips in London in 1799.

The map includes an interesting depiction of the Tennessee-North Carolina border, giving much more land to Tennessee than usually seen.

A small strip of land between Tennessee and Georgia is labeled "United States Territory".

The map was published in Phillips's edition of François-Alexandre-Frédéric, duc de La Rochefoucauld-Liancourt's Travels through the United States of North America, the country of the Iroquois, and Upper Canada.

Detailed Condition:

Engraving on 18th-century paper. Minor foxing. Trimmed to plate mark on right side. Mended tab tear.
