Description:

Scarce map of Poland, Lithuania, and contiguous parts of Ukraine, etc., showing both the dismemberment and newest boundaries, following the Congress of Vienna.

This map was originally published with a different title by William Faden in 1799. The map is based on the Rizzi-Zannoni 24-sheet map of 1772 that was commissioned by the King of Poland. An inset contains a bird's-eye plan of Warsaw flanked by tables of information concerning the population, religion, and languages.

A color key below the title identifies the regions of Prussia, Russia, Austria and the Kingdom of Poland.

This is the second state of the map. The third state, dated 1813, can be seen here.
