Description:

Fine example of this separately issued map of India and part of SE Asia, showing the extent of British territorial control in the early part of the 19th century. Very detailed and nicely engraved, it contains many brief geographical comments.

The map was originally engraved in 1788 by de la Rochette for William Faden, and updated in 1800 following the surveys and descriptions of Tieffenthaller, Anquetil du Perron and Kelly. This edition is a later update published by James Wyld, the successor to Faden.

While the map appears occasionally on the market, separately issued examples are quite rare.

Detailed Condition:

Fine example, dissected into 21 sections and backed onto linen, marbled paper to folded end sections on
