Description:

One of the most famous maps of Colonial America. The map was prepared along with the Codfish Map as Moll's pictorial counterclaims to offset the earlier maps of De L'Isle, especially the descriptions of the lands west of the Appalachian mountains. The map is also the first map to show postal routes in North America and includes an important map of Carolina as an inset. The map is heavily annotated with details of British settlements, colonial claims and, Indian tribes and claims and a host of other information, far too much to mention here. The inset of the Beavers at Niagara Falls became a standard symbol for many years. Schwartz & Ehrenberg, Plate 78 & 79. A strong example, lacking the usual fold browning and w/only minor restorations.
