Description:

Rare early map of Indian Territory from the 1879 edition of Cram's Railroad Atlas.

Cram's map of Indian Territory was first published in 1875 and was available as a separately issued map and in the the 1875 edition of Cram's Atlas. The 1879 edition is printed from the same plate, with a number of notable changes, including the addition of an alpha-numeric location system on the top, bottom and sides of the map, a significant innovation which was just then being introduced on printed maps.

Within the map itself, the most noteworthy changes are the additins of Cherokee Town, Stone Wall and Erin Sp. in the Chickasaw Nation, So. Canadian, McAllister, Rogers Station, Stringtown, and Luklala in the Choctaw Nation, Lightening Creek, Claremore, Chocteau, Locust Creek, and Tahlequah in the Cherokee Reservation, Muscogee, and Webber Falls in the Creek Nation, changes in the projected railroads through the Territory.

The map is very rare on the market. This is the first example of the 1879 edition we have offered in more than 15 years and there are no examples listed in AMPR in the past 25 years. We also handled one example of the 1875 edition.
