Gorgeous full color example of Kitchin's map of England & Wales.

The map shows the counties and identifies the cities, market towns, villages, and universities. It is decorated with a nice cartouche featuring two travelers and the British lion, and a compass rose.

Thomas Kitchin was among the most productive English engravers of the eighteenth century. Hydrographer to the King, he was also a well known author, publisher and art shop keeper. Kitchin's work was distinguished by his crisp, concise engraving style. He prepared these detailed maps, each updated with the latest information, for Walpole's interesting work aimed at arm-chair adventurers in Britain.
