Description:

Highly sought after map illustrating the progress of the American Revolutionary War, prepared by Thomas Kitchen for the June 1781 edition of the London Magazine. The map extends from the Chesapeake, Gloucester and Henrico Counties in the Northeast, to the Fluvana River and the southern Alleghany Mountains and Blue Mountains in the Northwest and from the Camden and Ninety Six Districts in South Carolina in the Southwest to the Coast and the mouth of the Great Pedee River in South Carolina along the east coast. Well engraved and nicely detailed map. This example was laid on linen, probably in the past 100 years, and bears an early dealer note on the verso, including the then price of $4.00. Closed tear along the left side of the map. A nice example of the map, which has not appeared in a dealer catalogue since 1983.
