Description:

Fascinating map of America, featuring an unusual northwest coast of America, which includes Martin d'Aguilar's strait which provides for a Northwest Passage via the Great Lakes, via what would likely be the so-called River of the West.

The rest of the Northwest Coast of America is oriented virtually due North, with notations regarding Russian explorations in 1743. California is a Peninsula, with annotations regarding Quivira or Teguaoio. Evidence of the claims of the various British and French colonies throughout, especially along the Eastern Seaboard.

Detailed Condition:

Minor soiling and spotting
