Description:

Fine separately issued thick paper example of the US Coast Survey map of St. Augustine Harbor in Florida.

In addition to the thin paper examples of the map which were published to be bound into the annual official reports, the US Coast Survey typically printed a limited number of copies of each survey map on heavy paper, suitable for presentation or use at sea. These thick paper examples were also typically engraved, rather than using the cheaper printed methods employed for the official accounts, making for a finer appearance.

The present map of St. Augustine extends north along the Tolomato or North River and south along the Matanzas River, with St. Augustine in the center, Anastasia Island at the bottom and North Beach at the top.

Includes extensive topographical and hydrographical details, sailing directions, notes, tidal information and soundings, with notes on the local lighthouse. A fine example of this rare separately issued chart.
