Description:

Nice old color example of Allard's rare Double Hemisphere map of the World.

The map is embellished with allegorical scenes and a pair of map showing the Northern and Southern Polar Regions.

Australia and New Zealand reflect the recent discoveries of Abel Tasman.

A finely colored example of this rare map.
