Description:

Detailed map of the Carolinas, Georgia and East Florida, extending from the Appalachians and eastern Tennessee and west Florida to Virginia and Cape Charles, from John Oldmixon's important book on the British colonies in America.

The map features the the Atlantic Seaboard from what is now southern Georgia all the way up to Cape Charles at the mouth of Chesapeake Bay. Charles Town (Charleston, South Carolina), founded in 1670, is depicted and plantations are noted by a symbol identified by a line under the title, "Note that ye plantations are marked thus".

The map is from volume 1 of John Oldmixon's The British Empire in America (London, 1708), one of the most important early treatises on Britain's colonies in America.

Detailed Condition:
