Description:

Striking early view of Fort Oswego from the South.

Fort Oswego was an important frontier post for British traders in the 18th century. A trading post was established in 1722 with a log palisade. New York governor William Burnet ordered a fort built at the site in 1727. The fort established a British presence on the Great Lakes. During the French and Indian War, this fort was captured and destroyed by the French in 1756. The site is now included in the city of Oswego, New York.

From Documentary History of the State of New York, published in 1850, based upon an original published circa 1760.
