Description:

Detailed attractive map of the southern portion of South America, including a large inset of Santiago, Chile, published in Nuremberg.

The map is based upon the work of Guillaume De L'Isle and includes information from the explorations of de Brouwer, Narborough and de Beauchesne. The cartouche credits Luis Amadeo Francisco Frezier for plan of Santiago, drawing upon his plan Santiago completed in 1712.

The map is extensively annotated and is illustrative of the fabulous detail and strong engraving quality of early 18th Century German cartographic publishers.

A rich decorative cartouche completes the map.
