Description:

The Easternmost Sheet of George Gauld's Landmark Chart of the Florida Keys.

On the eve of the American Revolution, George Gauld was charged by the British Admiralty with the task of charting the waters off of West Florida. Gauld spent 17 years in the Keys and his precise charts and descriptions provide an in-depth view of the Keys during the period of exploration. He charted the extent of benthic habitat in Florida Keys in the 1760s, including coral reefs, seagrass, and mangroves. He was taken prisoner by Spanish forces during the Siege of Pensacola in 1781.

The chart details the reef and islands, as well as the composition of the ocean floor.

The first edition of the chart was issued in 1790. A second edition was issued in 1820, and later corrected in 1835. The present chart includes an inset showing the Anchorages of Garden Kay from an 1854 American Coast Survey chart and was likely issued sometime thereafter, although we can find no record of any edition of this chart issued after 1835, with the exception of a note in a Susannah Fisher catalog, noting an edition revised to 1847.

All states are extremely rare and, in fact, it seems that the first state of 1790 is actually the most common.
