Description:

Large detailed English language map of Texas and the Southwest, published in Edinburgh by Thomson.

The map is largely based upon the explorations of Humboldt and Long in the Rocky Mountains and the West. It includes extensive notes along the lower Missouri and Lower Mississippi Rivers and remarkable detail in the Southern Rocky Mountain regions. There are two Salt Lake's and a mysterious river connecting them. Nice detail in Arizona and along the Colorado River and a nice early projection on Baja California.

The results of Zebulon Pike's explorations in the region are also in evidence.

One of the best maps of the region to appear in a commercial atlas in the first quarter of the 19th century.
