Description:

Interesting Soviet-era map of Manchuria, with particular focusing on the natural mineralogical resources of the region and the efforts to exploit them.

The key in the upper right has symbols for iron ore, gold ore, salt, etc. Rail lines are depicted as well.

The map probably predates the Soviet occupation of Manchuria immediately following the Second World War, however, it does not appear to depict the Japanese occupation.

Detailed Condition:

Small tear at left edge from where previously folded into a booklet.
