Description:

The People in the United States are Brave and Have a Fondness for Learning.

Kawraban woodblock sheet of text divided into four bands, each band containing a short description of the United States, the Russian Empire, England, and France respectively.

In the section on the United States, the text says that this country consists of thirty-one states in recent times; not a kingdom, but a republic; and, although founded by the Europeans, the people's manners and customs are different and they are brave and have a fondness for learning.
