Description:

"The Wines produced are of low repute"

Detailed map of Crimea, published in London by John Arrowsmith.

The map includes a extensive note on the history of the region and its present situation as of the mid-19th Century. Of note are the list of largely negative information in the left column:

The Crimea scarcely produces Corn enough for its own consumption.

It has numerous flocks of lank Merino Sheep & herds of Cattle

The Goats were all destroyed about 1835 or 1837

The Forests are disappearing . . .

There were in 1834 upwards of 2,000,000 Vine Plants -- The Wines produced are of low repute

Includes 2 inset maps of:

- Sebastapol Inlet & Harbour
