Description:

"$1750 membership -- Take your choice of lots!"

An early map of the Woodside Country Club, in Woodside City, California.

The club included a Riding School and stables, Lakes, Trails, Club Houses, Bath houses, etc.

The course was designed by Davenport Bromfield, an Australian immigrant who created a number of important maps of the area, including a four sheet map of San Mateo County in 1910.

One of the more interesting features of the map is that it locates a number of giant redwood trees within the subdivision.

Detailed Condition:

Minor dampstaining and handwritten note.
