Description:

Beautiful map of the Bay of Cadiz, including a plan of Cadiz, Puerto Maria and surrounding regions, with several sailing vessels, surrounded by a decorative scene incorporating a long haired blond man riding a chalice with a bow and arrow and the same man in a boat apparently after slaying a lion in the opposite inset. Two smaller maps depict the Tagus River from Toledo extending North and East to Morata, Cinchon and Colmenar and a second inset of the region bounded by San Sebastian and Deva. 4 decorative cartouches and spectacular ornamental strapwork around the map of the Bay of Cadiz. A rich dark impression and overall fine example. From the 1592 Latin edition of Ortelius' Theatrum Orbis Terrarum, the first modern atlas.
