Description:

Fehmarn Belt -- An Early Sailing Chart

Rare sea chart of the Fehmarn Belt, a strait connecting the north coast of Germany and the island of Lolland off south coast of Denmark, oriented with south at the top, which appeared in Blaeu's Het Licht der Zee-vaert, first published in 1608.

The map covers western Baltic Sea area with the coasts of Holstein, Schleswig and Jutland to Haderslev, the Danish islands Moen, Falster, Lolland, Langeland, Alsen, the south of Funen and Zealand. Also shows Usedom and Wollin as well as Bornholm and the Ertholmene in the east and Falsterbo and Trelleborg in Sweden.

The charts for this atlas are titled in both Dutch and French and are extremely rare. This is the only example of the chart we have seen on the market in more than 20 years.
