John Speed (1552-1629) is arguably the most famous English cartographer of any period. His The Theatre Of The Empire Of Great Britaine, consisting of maps of each of the individual English counties are perhaps the best known and most sought after of all county maps. The maps themselves were derived from the best and most up-to-date sources available, predominantly those of Saxton and Norden. However, Speed also made innovations of his own, including the introduction of town plans on many of the maps, vignette scenes of topographical, historical or archaeological interest and also the coats of arms of local Earls and Dukes.
