Description:

Early edition of Johnson's map of the Southwest. Despite the title, Arizona appears below New Mexico (Baylor Line), a nascent Nevada appears, taking a large chunk out of California and with a truncated bottom, Utah is far wider than its final boundary, Colorado appears for the first time.

Many counties run from California to the Western Boundary of Texas, across all of New Mexico. Colorado has no counties yet, only those extending across the border from Utah. It includes explorers routes, the major routes of commerce, towns, forts, Indian tribes, mountains, rivers, roads, mining districts, proposed railroad routes, important dates in the evolution of the US-Mexico Boundary, etc.

Johnson's map of the West is one of the most interesting and collectable maps of the period. The maps were updated annually or more often, showing profound territorial boundary changes and county formations from year to year and even within a single year. A comprehensive collection of maps of the American West is incomplete without a good run of these maps.

The present map is Ira Lourie's State 3.0, which he dates to 1861-62, with the following note from Ira Lourie's Johnson Mapping Project:

> The names "UTAH" and "NEVADA" no longer overlap; NV boundary now extends in the northwest from longitude 116 past 120 to the eastern edge of Goose Lake then due S to Beckwith Pass then south along the Sierra Nevada Mtns to southern border which is the same as UT's; also CO defined out of UT, KS, NE.
