Description:

Detailed antique map of central London by Thomas Tegg, published in London in circa 1810.

The map names almost all of the streets in central London at the time and shows the city in the middle of the Georgian Era, before the massive building booms and expansion of the city would occur later in the 19th century.

Tegg makes sure to mention in the title that the map shows the East and West India Docks.

Detailed Condition:
