Description:

Attractive example of the Salzburg area, from Ortelius' Theatrum Orbis Terrarum, the first modern atlas of the world.

In this image, the map takes the form of a trompe l'oeil window covering pulling back from its tacks. Beyond is a decorative birdseye view of the city, which Ortelius mentions was based on Munster.

In the successor map of the Salzburg region (van den Broecke 108), Ortelius did away with the birdseye view.

The map is attributed to Marco Secznagel (1520-1580) of Salzburg.
