Fine example of Blaeu's map showing the course of the Dvina River in three separate panels.

The headwaters are at bottom left, with the mouth at Archangelsk at upper right. The map is decorated with a superb title cartouche surrounded by putti and a distance scale flanked by wildlife. The plate was originally engraved by Jan Jansson. After his death it was inherited by his son-in-law, known as Jansson-Waesberg, who published it in conjunction with Moses Pitt. The map was also later issued by Pieter Schenk, circa 1700 and also appeared in composite atlases of the period.
