Description:

A virtually flawless unfolded example of Arrowsmith & Lewis' map of Mississippi Territory, extending from the Mississippi River to the Chatahooche River and incorporating all of Alabama. Mississippi Territory was established in 1802. Following the Louisiana Purchase in 1803, the US began to claim the region known as West Florida, but the Spanish retained control of this region until 1810 and the region was not added to Mississippi Territory until 1812. This map, one of the earliest separate maps of the Territory, shows West Florida as not yet part of the Territory. The region is dominated by several companies, including Georgia Company, Tennessee Company and Upper Mississippi Company. The lands of the Upper, Middle and Lower Creeks and the Chickasaws and Choctawas are shown. A number of Indian paths are illustrated, along with Villages and Towns throughout the map. The map illustrates the primitive nature of the settlements and roads in this region. An important early map for Mississippi and Alabama collectors.
