Description:

Fine example of Matthew Carey's map of Massachusetts, from Carey's General Atlas. The map is hand colored by counties, and shows towns, rivers, lakes, mountains, roads, islands, bays, shoals, and a host of other details. Carey published the first American Atlas to be published in the United States, compiling a number of excellent maps from indigenous sources in the first compilation of American maps. It is one of the best maps of Massachusetts to appear in a Commercial Atlas in the first half of the Century. A fine example
