Description:

An Early Separate Map of Dakota Territory

Remarkable large format map of Dakota Territory, reporting the extent of the Land Office Surveys through 1866.

The map is centered on the Missouri River, extending to the confluence of the Yellowstone River in the northwest and the Black Hills in the southwest. It is also one of the earliest map to depict counties in Dakota Territory.

Shows early counties, township surveys, areas where Indian Title to the land has recently been "extinguished," and other early details.

One of the earliest obtainable maps to focus on Dakota Territory.
