Description:

The rare first state of Doncker's Sea Chart, which extends from the Island of California to Chili, with noteworthy insets of New Zealand, the Ladrões and Japan & Ieso. The projection of California based upon Sanson's maps of 1656, with even greater sea between California and the mainland. The Canal de Santa Barbara, Monte Rey, P. Concepsion, S. Diego, Mendocino, S. Quentin, C. Blanco and many other early placenames appear. Excellent detail throughout the Pacific Coast. This is one of the earliest regional maps to focus on the Pacific Coast. In addition to the remarkable treatment of California and the Pacific Coast, the inset of New Zealand is a wonderful early detailed treatment of Abel Tasman's discoveries in New Zealand, including 5 placenames. This is the rare first state of the map, predating the inclusion of the Gulf Coast of Central America, which has appeared in only 1 dealer catalogue since 1990 (Robert Ross, 1995). Minor restorations along the margins and centerfold, as usual, the map having been typically cut close or into the neatlines in the earliest edition of the Doncker's Zee Atlas. In all a very attractive example. McLaughlin 21; Wagner 382; Leighly 36; Lowery 150; Howse & Sanderson 61; Putman 134-35; Goss 35.
