Description:

Very attractive birdseye view of Geneva, published by Sebastian Munster in his Basel studio in the middle of the 16th century.

The map shows Lake Geneva, with several fishing boats, the course of the Rhone River, and the surrounding countryside.

The map includes the coat of arms of the city, composed of half an imperial eagle and a key of St. Peter's.

This map originally appeared in Munster's Cosmographia, one of the most influential geographical works of the 16th century.

Detailed Condition:

Very minor see-through to text on verso.
