Description:

An exceptional western railroad map, detailing the lines of one of the major Railroad Companies of the early 20th Century.

The map tracks (in red) the primary lines of the Southern Pacific Railroad, with single track, double track and lines under construction shown. The map also shows the steamship lines and the lines half owned by the company in green, primarily in northern California.

The growth of the SPRR corresponds with the rise of California and the West Coast as an economic power. Inset maps show the lines in Texas, Southern California, San Francisco and Portland.
