Description:

Massive antique wall map of California, by master mapmaker George F. Cram of Chicago.

This is one of the most detailed maps of California from the first decade of the 20th century. It was published immediately after the creation of Imperial County (from eastern San Diego County); indeed, the border between the two seems like almost an afterthought.

The map includes insets of the Bay Area and vicinity, Yosemite National Park and Yosemite State Park, San Diego, and "The Los Angeles and San Bernardino Regions".

The national forests are noted in dashed blue outlines.

Detailed Condition:

Color-lithographed folding map on substantial banknote paper. Few tears and faults in the upper margin.
