Description:

Highly detailed English map of the Chesapeake Bay region by Herman Moll.

The map shows towns, rivers, inlets, shoals, islands, and other details.

Predates the resolution of the Dispute between the Penn Family and Lord Baltimore over the ownership of Delaware. Cape Henlopen was ultimately the deciding point of reference, which resulted in the Penn Family obtaining control of most of Delaware. This was the genesis of a dispute that was not resolved until the 1750s and ultimately mapped by Mason & Dixon in the early 1760s.

Remarkable detail throughout. One of the best and most detailed maps of its size issued in the first half of the 18th Century.
