parts of the city.

The map is quite detailed, pinpointing more than 32 hotels, each associated with one or more states. For example, the Ashland at Fourth Ave. & 24th Street is listed as the headquarters for delegates from Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming.

It also offers a comprehensive guide on how to reach Madison Square Garden from various key locations in the city such as Battery, Barclay St. Ferry, Brooklyn Bridge, City Hall, Chambers St. Ferry, Christopher St. Ferry, Cortlandt St. Ferry, Desbrosses St. Ferry, Fourteenth St. Ferry, Grand Central Depot, Hotels on Broadway, Liberty St. Ferry, and Twenty-Third St. Ferry. It also lists the nearest elevated railroad stations to Madison Square Garden.

The Madison Square Garden itself is described as being bounded by 27th St. on the north, 26th St. on the south, Fourth Ave on the east, and Madison Ave on the west side.

This guide was evidently a helpful resource for the delegates, allowing them to navigate the bustling city of New York with ease, find their accommodation, and reach the convention site without any trouble.
