Description:

Detailed antique map of Lorraine and the neighboring regions, centered on the cities of Metz and Nancy.

Strassbourg is shown to the far east of the map, while Luxembourg appears at the top. This map refers to Lotharingia, a successor empire to Charlemagne that evolved over time into Lorraine.

The map includes a decorative cartouche in the lower left that shows a classical scene. This map was published by Gerard Valk at the end of the 17th century.

Detailed Condition:

Original hand-color. Minor soiling.
