Description:

D'Anville's map of a portion of Chinese Tartary is a beautifully detailed and intricately designed piece of cartographic history.

Drawn by d'Anville in the early 18th century, this map provides a fascinating glimpse into the geography and political landscape of this section of Tartarie Chinoise, or the Chinese Tartary, at the time. It shows the major cities, towns, and geographical features, including rivers, mountains, and lakes.

One of the main features of this map is the inclusion of the Tartar Eluts and the Kalkas, two important ethnic groups in the region. The Tartar Eluts were a group of nomadic Mongol people who lived in the western part of the region, while the Kalkas were a group of Turkic people who lived in the eastern part.

Overall, Jean Baptiste d'Anville's map of Tartarie Chinoise is a stunning piece of cartographic history. It offers a fascinating glimpse into the geography and political landscape of the region in the early 18th century and is a valuable addition to any collection of antique maps.
